SEND A BLUEPRINT OF THE POLICE STATION TO ME AND TO HANEDA.

"WHAT I MUST DO."

REPEAT AFTER ME "WHAT I MUST DO."

IT'LL TAKE OFF AGAIN AT 01H50 TO AOMORI AIRPORT!

IT'S 01H30 IN 15 MINUTES, A C1 CARGO AIRCRAFT COMING FROM IRUMA BASE WILL LAND AT HANEDA.

IN 90 MINUTES, THE 6TH ANTI-RIOT SQUAD COMPANY WILL BE ON THE SPOT! DO YOU GET THAT, KANEHARA?

UNDERSTOOD? WE MUST STAND GROUND FOR ANOTHER 90 MINUTES!

Notes:

Page 152: The S.A.T (Special Assault Team) was founded in April 1996 in Japan. Their duty is to efficiently intervene during hostage situations, hijackings and other emergency situations. They're the Japanese equivalent of the American S.W.A.T team.

Page 153: The 'Daruma' also known as dharma, are hollow and round Japanese wish dolls with no arms or legs, modelled after Bodhidharma, the founder and first patriarch of Zen. Typical colours are red (most common), yellow, green, and white. The doll has a face with a moustache and beard, but its eyes only contain the color white. Using black ink, one fills in a single circular eye while thinking of a wish. Should the wish later come true, the second eye is filled in.

The word 'Daruma' is also used in a famous game played by children all over the world (see next note).

Page 157: It's actually about a Japanese game, involving the 'Daruma' chant. In this game one counts to 3 (or more), turns around, shouts something and the first one to move a muscle is considered 'out'. In English: Red light, green light! In French: 1,2,3, soleil! In Dutch: 1,2,3, piano!
